AAI land acquired to create buffer around CM’s house

The Delhi government has acquired land belonging to the Airports Authority of India to divert a public road from the vicinity of Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal’s residence. The acquisition was taken to prevent any encroachment on the government land for the purpose. The proposed diversion of the road has been done to avoid the congestion in the area that has caused eyebrows to be raised at the house. Kejriwal is residing in the land that was once owned by his father, late Brij Bhushan. The necessity of acquiring land from the selected area is bound to create a buffer zone around private property that has not gone down well with the opposition political parties.

In 2018, the project was approved by the Central Administration to create a buffer zone around private property owned by the Congress president, Udit Raj Bhushan. The project came up for discussion by Congress leaders after the government of India had acquired land from the area to divert a public road from the vicinity of the residence. Congress leaders were intent on diverting the road to prevent any encroachment on the government land for the purpose.

The proposed acquisition is a significant step towards creating a buffer zone around private property. It is not clear if any additional acquisition will be made to complete the buffer zone.

End of the road: A policeman stands in the road in front of Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik’s residence. The road is proposed to be diverted due to security reasons.

Bombay High Court

The Bombay High Court on Friday quashed the Maharashtra government’s decision to grant permission to the Jain community for the construction of a temple on land that is currently a state-owned forest. The court ruled that the state government had failed to follow the procedures laid down under the Forest (Conservation) Act, 1980, and the Bombay Public Lands (Acquisition and Resale) Act, 1948, before granting permission for the construction of the temple.

The court also directed the state government to reconsider its decision and take appropriate action under the relevant laws.

Goa Congress legislators stage walkout on the opening day of the Budget Session of the State Assembly on Thursday, condemning Governor Mridula Sinha’s decision to not invite the party to form a government, even after it had emerged as the single largest party in the recent elections.

All 56 MLAs of the Congress were wearing black arm bands as a mark of protest against the government’s decision to not invite the BJP to form a government.

On Wednesday, authorities at the 561 Medical College and Sassoon General Hospital in Pune had served notices to as many as 275 resident doctors, expelling them for failing to resume their duties.

In response, the IMA had called for a bandh of all out-patient department (OPD) services in all clinical establishments, with the exception of emergency ones.

Nearly 500 doctors, including resident doctors, medical interns, and undergraduate students participated in the mass strike.

Dr. Joshi said, "Unlike to the previous notices served by the IMA on the matter and approved him of our stance. These notices serve no practical purpose as this matter is not proceeded and we will not withdraw the strike until our security concerns have been duly addressed."

In July last year, relatives of a deceased patient assailed two resident doctors at the Sassoon General Hospital (SGH) for failing to halt the patient's bleeding, resulting in the doctors being compelled to undergo treatment for their injuries at the hospital’s intensive care unit.

Exclusion of the Muslim minority from its electoral calculus may have helped the BJP, but the fallout can be serious

Power of a symbol

Given theclar, this wasd to have been the last chance to consolidate theciousidential bloc. But the Muslim vote is not only an important indicator of the health of the BJP, but it is also seen as a crucial test of the party's ability to manage electoral coalitions. The exclusion of the Muslim minority from its electoral calculus may have helped the BJP, but the fallout can be serious. The costs of such an electoral strategy are likely to be legitimised in the public eye as the votes are not asked to bear the risk. Instead of maximising the chance of re-election, the party may not be the best option.

The Compulsive Patent Hoarding Disorder

For the momentary feeling. It's only in the short term, that the compulsive patent hoarding disorder affects the economy. In the long term, the benefits of patenting may outweigh the costs. The following is a list of some of the benefits of patenting:

- Enhances innovation and creativity
- Promotes economic growth
- Increases competitiveness
- Protects intellectual property rights
- Encourages research and development

In a competitive market, the company that holds the most patents has an advantage. This is because it can prevent others from using the same technology or ideas. The company can also use the patents to negotiate higher prices for its products. This is because it can show that its products are better than those of its competitors.

The current model of commercialisation does not work for publicly funded research

The National IPR Policy released in 2005 has not been able to address the issue of patenting. The policy is still in the planning stage. The policy is not being implemented in any state.

the question of who is the number two in the Cabinet has been posturing for weightier portfolios. Having overplayed his hand, he has claimed his only earnings now were from this show. Given time ministership’ when the politician in power constantly al-

Changing a presidential system is the best way of securing a strong government. For 25 years till 2006, our system has also produced coalition governments which have been obliged to focus more on politics than on governance. All the ministers have been forced to concentrate on short-term gains or on promoting party interests. Like the lowest common denominator of their coalition, since with forced support of bring can get sup-support. The competitiveness of the government has deterred the voting of ministers (or governors) or other leaders who know which interests it team is likely to win. Therefore, leaders can focus on governance rather than on staying in power. A system of directly elected chief executive may allow such a system to work, but the system is costly and inefficient. The presidential system, in contrast, operates on the principle of the “winner takes it all”, where a single person can succeed in dealing with the opposition and push through legislation. In a presidential system, the leader can focus on governance rather than on staying in power. Therefore, leaders can focus on governance rather than on staying in power. Therefore, leaders can focus on governance rather than on staying in power.

Different models of government have different advantages and disadvantages. Some systems have a single head of state, which may lead to a concentration of power and potential for abuse. Other systems have multiple heads of state, which can spread power and prevent any one person from having too much power. However, a presidential system has the advantage of providing a clear answer to the question of who is the number two in the Cabinet. In a presidential system, the president is the ultimate authority, and the vice president plays a largely ceremonial role. This can help prevent the concentration of power and potential for abuse. However, a presidential system also has the disadvantage of potentially leading to a lack of accountability and transparency. However, a presidential system also has the disadvantage of potentially leading to a lack of accountability and transparency.

The present parliamentary system in India is troubled. The government has been weakened by the opposition and the Prime Minister has been unable to accomplish much. The issue of who is the number two in the Cabinet has been a major source of contention. The government has been forced to concentrate on short-term gains or on promoting party interests. However, there is a need to find a solution to this problem.

For example, the current system has been weakened by the opposition and the Prime Minister has been unable to accomplish much. The issue of who is the number two in the Cabinet has been a major source of contention. The government has been forced to concentrate on short-term gains or on promoting party interests. However, there is a need to find a solution to this problem.

Consequently, a presidential system could be a solution to this problem. A presidential system would have a single head of state, which would prevent the concentration of power and potential for abuse. Additionally, the president would be elected by the people, rather than by the legislature. This would ensure that the president is accountable to the people and not to the government. The president would have the power to appoint and remove the Prime Minister, which could help prevent the government from being too powerful. Moreover, a presidential system would have a clear chain of command, which could help prevent the government from being too complex and inefficient. 500 Indians in crisis in Bahrain

The news from Bahrain came even as the Telangana government sought the Indian high commission in New Delhi for the safety of the five Indians who were employed in a company in a country where all Indians have been arrested. Mr. Sooraj had instructed the Telangana High Court to intercede to look into the case.

Trade unions, the Congress and the CPI(M) have been given the task of identifying a number of Indian workers from the company and sending them to India. The workers are said to have been arrested because of alleged guilty acts.

“Now you can seal a deal with any trader in U.P. because all the required NOCs and permits are there,” said a meat trader, who ranked himself among the top 50 in the state. He said that while the meat establishment was permitted to function, it was now mandatory for all meat traders to follow the rules. He added that the move looks like an effort to boost the meat market.

President Trump's administration on Tuesday

The president's comments come as the Pentagon is preparing to release a report on the possible use of space-based weapons that could be used to destroy missile targets in space.

The report is expected to be released later this week and will be the first major update on the topic since 2001.

The Pentagon has been working on a range of options for how it could use space-based weapons, including the possibility of using them to intercept missiles from both within the United States and from abroad.

The study was ordered by Congress as part of a broader effort to assess the military's ability to defend against threats from space-based weapons.

The report will be released later this week and will be the first major update on the topic since 2001.

Central bank puts 4 PSBs under watch

Positions Mound at India

The Reserve Bank of India has put four public sector lenders, including IDBI Bank and Indian Overseas Bank, under watch and asked them to take measures to improve their health. The RBI said that the four banks could be put under the “special positive monitoring” or “special focus” category if their performance did not improve.

The banks include IDBI Bank, Indian Overseas Bank, Union Bank of India, and Syndicate Bank. The RBI also asked these banks to put in place a corrective action plan and to submit a progress report every month.

Shamim grabs the lead

Overnight leader Mukesh manages a par, after a bad start, to be second

Shamim’s chances of a double century were made up by his below par driving as the Delhi all-rounder’s second round six-figure total in a row left him three strokes behind the lead. Rahul Chawla of the Delhi Golf Club (89) is third on 79.

Shamim has 30 under par and is only two behind world No. 30, and so his impressive second round compared to his opening 69 was a disappointment. However, the top seed retained his title for another round.

In the third round, Shamim started strongly by birdying the first, but the birdies were not enough to offset disappointing scores on the next two holes. However, he bounced back by birdying the last two holes to settle the score at 66.

His fine putting skills saved the day for him, and he moved up to second with 18 under par after the second hole, a 25-stroke and a three-putter on 20th hole (8), which brought Shamim in return.

Shamim, who had been struggling with his ironing throughout the week, found the form only on an occasion for the last four rounds. However, his fine putting skills saved the day for him, and he moved up to second with 18 under par after the second hole, a 25-stroke and a three-putter on 20th hole (8), which brought Shamim in return.

Shamim’s second round showed he was not done yet, after his opening 69.

Shamim has 30 under par and is only two behind world No. 30, and so his impressive second round compared to his opening 69 was a disappointment. However, the top seed retained his title for another round.

In the third round, Shamim started strongly by birdying the first, but the birdies were not enough to offset disappointing scores on the next two holes. However, he bounced back by birdying the last two holes to settle the score at 66.

ONGC: Debabrat scored its second straight win defeating Manager Tax (Gujarat) in the second round of the Santosh Trophy football championship here on Thursday.

The IT boys knew they were up against one of the best teams in the country. But they displayed guts of the best teams in the country and confidently into the final quarter.

ONGC’s championship proved to be meaningful played in a much relaxed manner. The idea was to execute its strategy for the full 90 minutes against a strong Indian Overseas Bank on Friday. It was, in fact, a re-haul of sorts for the team. After its main players, including a good 5-point head in the first session, ONGC tested its bench strength.

Income Tax, on the other hand, continued to work hard at the basics. Debabrat V. Siddhiv. the only tall ball in the team, who looked smooth and easy beating the defence in the first half, suddenly could not find the space to move around. He was completely checked by the big man from Uttar Pradesh.

Income Tax could have gone ahead and off the first chance it created. Peter Careville pushed a long ball to Brian Menneson has on the right flank. Brian entered the box and squared the ball to Liston who beat the goalkeeper with a right-footer in the 10th minute. The Kerala goalkeeper季左 again found in the box but its shot was blocked by Debabrat. Liston went in with a through ball and the striker easily beat his marker to bury the ball into the far corner of the net.

After overcoming an early scare in the second half, when Aaron Sadh (Gujarat) tried to connect a cross from Brian, Kerala went on to dominate its opponent. It created several chances and finally equalized one back in the 61st minute.

The teams failed to score during the regular time and 30 minutes of extra-time. The Bengal defence kept a clean sheet again and so did Kerala and no overtime goal during regular play.

Mizoram must be ruing the chances it missed including the two chances the team got in the dying minutes of extra-time.

During regular play, the defensive side was pitted by West Bengal goalkeeper季左 made two saves to preserve.

The results: ONGC 6-2; Railway 0-4; Bengal 3-0; Karnataka 2-2; Andhra 1-1; Goa 1-1; Assam 2-2; Maharashtra 1-1; Tamil Nadu 1-1; Kerala 1-1; Punjab 1-1; and Manipur 1-1.

Scientists are alarmed at the rapid pace of melting of the earth’s polar caps

LONDON FRIDAY, MARCH 24, 2017

The World Wide Fund for Nature (WWF) will set out in its Global Ocean Stress Map on Wednesday, after a delay of two years, as a result of the Paris Agreement adopted last year.

The map will cover the world’s oceans, from the Arctic to the Antarctic, and from the tropics to the polar regions, and will show the impact of various pressures on the world’s marine ecosystems.

The map is intended to help decision-makers and stakeholders understand the most pressing threats facing the world’s oceans and to identify areas where action is needed.

It will also show how the world’s oceans are faring in the face of climate change and other pressures, such as overfishing and pollution.

The map is the result of a collaboration between the WWF and other organizations, including the International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN), the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP), and the World Meteorological Organization (WMO).

The map will be used to inform policy decisions, including those related to the implementation of the Paris Agreement.

The map is expected to be updated regularly to reflect changes in the state of the world’s oceans.
